

Dear Future MATH 1314 Students,

In this course you will need to pay attention all the time. If you miss a day, you will fall behind so much. You will expect to have more than one homework a week and a quiz very week. I would advise you to go to her office or tutoring because it helps out a lot to have one on one teaching. In class, you will need to print out your own note sheets. She puts them in black board and you print them out and she goes over it in class with you. She also records each class and post it online so if you do get stuck, you can go back and listen to her talk about it. Before an exam, I went over each of my class notes multiple times. I even redid the problems on the quizzes and homework, and that helped out a lot. And after each test if you feel bad because you didn't do a good job, don't give up. The more you put into it the more better you will do. Make sure you don't miss any of the homeworks. Even if you didn't do good on a test you will still have all those back up grades to help you out so don't ever give up. I think she's the best teacher at this college so even if you did quit it isn't gonna get any easier trust me!!!!!! And she makes everything fun. She tells jokes every day before she starts class so it's always cool to go and learn something. And once you get the hang of whatever it is y'all are doing, it makes you want to do more math so whatever you do don't give up. Don't skip class or leave early or skip out on homeworks because it will all add up in the end to either help you or make it worse. But otherwise it was an awesome course I would definitely take it again!!!
